

Stacia Odums

5th Grade Teacher

Stacia Odums is an experienced educator and passionate advocate for student empowerment. A native of Connecticut, she relocated to Charlotte in 2012 and has since built a remarkable career in education spanning over 14 years. As a dedicated mother of five, Stacia brings a unique blend of warmth, empathy, and relational skills to her role, establishing strong connections with students and fostering an environment of trust and growth.

With a background in special education, Stacia has developed a keen ability to tailor her approach to meet the diverse needs of her students. Currently serving as a 5th-grade teacher, she is deeply committed to helping her students recognize their innate worth and potential. Stacia's teaching philosophy centers on cultivating a sense of royalty and identity within each child, empowering them to walk confidently in their purpose and embrace their full potential.

Stacia's classroom is a place of transformation, where meaningful relationships are built and students are encouraged to shine. Her passion for seeing young minds flourish is matched only by her dedication to supporting them as they discover who they are and what they can achieve.
